THANKSGIVING BEING OBSERVED IN FULLNESS OF THE TERM HERE.

General Resumption of Plants Throughout Region Good Reason for Giving Thanks.

WEATHER LIKE A SUMMER DAY.

Poor Have Been Cared For and Patients at Cottage State Hospital Given Special Dinner.—Plenty of Amusements Offered.

Thanksgiving Day with all that the name implies is being observed while quietly yet with the true spirit in Connellsville today. The people of the town have many reasons to give thanks and at many ways and at public worship this was apparent. With conditions brightening day by day, with industries resuming, clouds of coke smoke once more hanging over the region and being steadily added to the people of Western Pennsylvania who a short time ago were looking toward a winter in which suffering might be expected have come to realize that work will be plenty and are therefore today joining with the whole country in offering up thanks.

In addition to the union services held in the Presbyterian church, which were attended by a large number, entertainment has been provided for the holiday along the lines of seasonable pastimes. There is a football game scheduled for this afternoon between the High School team and the club representing the Mt. Pleasant High School. At the Colonial Theatre this afternoon and this evening local vocalists are producing the tuneful opera, "The Chimes of Normandy." As another mark of prosperity "The Boy With the Boodle" is holding the boards at the Soisson Theatre this afternoon and this evening.

The price of King Turkey is another reason for the people of the region being thankful. Where last year they paid more than 25 cents a pound for the National Bird this season the shipments were so large that the prices went tumbling down and as a result there are several families partaking of the regulation food of the day who had not anticipated it.

While those who had plenty were enjoying the day the poor were not forgotten. Baskets filled with good things were distributed this morning and many homes where the cheer of the season would not otherwise have entered were made glad.

Remarkable Weather Conditions.

This is one of the most remarkable Thanksgiving Days that Connellsville and this section have known for years. At 8:30 o'clock this morning the thermometer registered 71 degrees and was rising, in the face of all tradition and against the weather man's custom for years, of furnishing a nice crisp brand of early winter for this day, accompanied by a top dressing of snow to cheer the heart and beguile the feet and make merry the football fan. Instead of wearing overcoats and sweaters the average man felt like discarding his winter wear and donning a summer suit.

Old residents say that this is about the warmest Thanksgiving day that the town has known since 1879 when a similar condition prevailed. In the absence of records their word must be taken. Another notable warm winter day in this part of the country was New Year's day of 1873 when picnicing parties were common in Pittsburg.

School Children Help Poor.

Connellsville school children are making their donation to the poor of the town and several people will have reason to give thanks due to their donations. In the different schools yesterday afternoon collections were taken and a neat sum was realized. The money will be given to the W. C. T. U. for distribution. The amounts received from the different schools were: Second Ward, $4.75; Third Ward, $7.05; South Side, $7.13; Fourth Ward, $702; High School, $4.15.

Patients Have Dinner.

Sixteen patients are spending their Thanksgiving at the Cottage State Hospital. Out of this number 14 were able to partake of a well appointed turkey dinner. Up until noon today four turkeys had been donated the hospital by the Muir meat market and three and one-half dozen carnations by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Rock Cook, the Italian who was stabbed yesterday at Dickerson Run, was resting easy today at noon.

A real Sunday appearance and feeling hung over the town this morning. The morning bells of the Immaculate Conception Church boomed out at 6 o'clock their glad welcome of the day and a few minutes later the Methodist Protestant bell pealed out the coming of Thanksgiving Day. Thus Catholic and Protestant united in the great National holiday and all alike with thankful hearts welcomed it. The ringing of the Methodist Protestant bell is a new custom and it will likely be continued from this time forward.

The postoffice this morning made but one delivery, and the regulation holiday hours were observed at the office. The hotels of town were open to guests and especially attractive menus were prepared for all who desried to partake of them, but the bars were closed, following a request made some years ago by the courts.

There were many family reunions. From various points visitors arrived home this morning and suit cases were to be seen carried by men and women from trains with happy faces. The day generally was given over to this sort of reunion of families.

Others took an off day to spend in the woods, and train No. 48 this morning carried a large party of hunters to the mountains. Others started out afoot early this morning to hunt in the neighboring hills and be home to partake of dinner.

Nearly every industry about town closed down entirely and the early morning whistles summoning men to work were not blown. All the stores were closed, and the lay off day at all the coke works was observed today. While there is not a great deal of amusement offered for the day everyone is taking a rest, that is offered the opportunity.

MRS. BALSLEY DIES AT NEW HAVEN HOME.

Passes Away Last Evening After Lingering Illness.

SUFFERED STROKE LAST YEAR

Was One of the Most Widely Known Women in Vicinity Being a Tireless Worker in Different Church Societies Here.

After a lingering illness, Mrs. Catherine Anderson Balsley, aged 61 years, wife of James Robinson Balsley, a prominent resident of New Haven, passed away yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock at her home on First street. About a year ago Mrs. Balsley suffered a stroke of paralysis which resulted in her death.

Mrs. Balsley was the daughter of Robert Walker Francis, and Elizabeth Ratcliffe Francis. She was born in Connellsville on April 29, 1847, in the "Three Brothers," brick house on the hill just above the B. & O. depot. When a young woman she united with the Christian church of Connellsville and was Baptized November 26, 1867. She was one of a family of six children one sister Mrs. Mary Jane Laco of Perryopolis surviving.

Mrs. Balsley was married to James Robinson Balsley on November 26, 1867. To the union four children were born all of whom survive with the exception of one son, Bennie. Mrs. Balsley was a member of the Christian church and always was ready to lend her assistance in any work in the church and its various societies. She was a member of the Christian Temperance Union, the Ladies' Aid Society, the Christian Woman's Board of Missions of the Christian church, the Ladies' Circle of the G. A. R. No. 100, the Woman's Culture Club, the Ladies' Literary Club and the Edna Rebecca Lodge I. O. O. F.

Mrs. Balsley was one of the most widely known women of Connellsville and New Haven having spent all her life here. She was a good Christian woman, an indulgent wife and mother, and was known for her kind and charitable disposition. She was one of the foremost workers in all the societies to which she belonged and at various times had held different offices in the societies. During her lingering illness she was a patient sufferer and was conscious almost up until the end. Her many friends will regret to learn of her death.

She is survived by her husband and three children, Isaac Francis Balsley, of Wilkinsburg, Charles Hammond Balsley and Miss Victoria Balsley of New Haven.

Funeral tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. C. M. Watson will officiate. Interment in Chestnut Hill Cemetery.

Stockholders to Meet.

The stockholders of the Connellsville, Klondike, Normalville and Ohiopyle Telephone Company has been called to meet here Saturday.

NEW FEDERAL BUILDING TO OCCUPY CORNER OF ARCH AND APPLE STREETS.

Deeds For Property Ready to Be Forwarded---Want Building For General Federal Use---Construction May Start in Early Spring.

On this Thanksgiving Day the people have reason to rejoice that all details have been completed and the final papers drawn up for the purchase of the site of the Government postoffice, to be erected in Connellsville. It was announced this morning that the deeds had been prepared and were ready to be forwarded to the Government for acceptance. The site of the postoffice will be the corner of Apple and Arch streets.

It was expected that all the papers in the case would be completed and sent to United States District Attorney John W. Dunkle of Pittsburg today, but the abstracting of the titles, which date back to the original land grant have occupied more time than it was at first thought; and it may be Friday evening before they are entirely completed. However, there is no item upon which there can be a disagreement, and the parties have already affixed their names to the necessary papers insuring the selection of the site.

The agreement provides for the payment of $12,500 for the Newmyer property and $17,000 for the Wallace property. The Newmyer property fronts 60 feet on Apple street and 166 feet along North Arch street. The Wallace property has a frontage of 62 feet six inches along Apple street and runs back a depth of 166 feet to Orchard alley. The Government required a plot 120X120 feet so that it will be seen that the property purchased will give ample room for the proposed building.

Mr. Wallace stated that the purchase of the property meant that it must be vacated within 30 days from the time that the Government gave notice that they desired to commence work, but that he did not believe that the work would be commenced before early spring. The agreements signed by the owners of the property are to the effect that the property must be cleared of all buildings upon it within the prescribed 30 days after the notice is issued. All the building material and the contents of buildings upon property go to original owner.

In connection with the erection of the postoffice building, Mr. Wallace urged that the citizens of town unite in an effort to make the building one for all Federal business. He believes that if certain plans are urged upon the Government officials that the building can be utilized for United States Court purposes, and especially it is urged that a part of the building be set aside for the placing of a Deputy Collector of Revenue Customs. The people of Somerset county are compelled to travel either to Pittsburg or Greensburg to secure their supply of revenue stamps and he believes that it would be to the general benefit and welfare of the community to have established in the new building quarters for a Deputy Collector of Revenue.

At the present time there is available for commencing the erection of the building the sum of $60,000. While this will not be sufficent to complete the building it is believed that this amount will be added to from time to time and that the building will be erected and occupied by next Thanksgiving day. Plans for buildings costing a certain price are always kept on hand and the design of Federal buildings is maintained all over the United States, but these plans differ as to elaborateness in their design. It is a matter for the people to interest themselves in the style of building that is desired here, and their solicitation may have much to do with the building that is erected.

The selection of the Neymyer-Wallace site was brought about principally through its close proximity to the railroad stations, its central location as to the proposed consolidated towns of Connellsville and New Haven. The price was not considered excessive. The location of the postoffice at the corner of Apple and Orchard streets will require the railroad companies to deliver the mails without extra cost to the government. This provision reads that where a postoffice is located within a certain number of feet of a railroad station the company guarantees to make the deliveries of mail.

Mr. Wallace will move from his property which he purchased and improved at a large expenditure about a year ago. He expects to take up his home in his old apartments which the family occupied before moving into their new home. The change will not affect Mr. Newmyer's residence.

TIRED ATHLETES SPEND DAY IN BED.

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Dorando Pietri of Italy and Johnny Hayes, the Irish-American, are two of the most tired men in America this Thanksgiving Day. Incidentally Dorando who ran the Olympic Marathon official winner into the ground at Madison Square Garden last night in the great match of 26 and a fraction miles, is easily the happiest and his defeated antagonist the gloomiest resident of the Western Hemisphere.

Surrounded by wildly enthusiastic friends, the doughty little Italian champion lies propped up on pillows today sipping chianti and telling in voluble Latin phraseology and gestures how he did it. Hayes, the glory of his victory in England dimmed into obscurity by the bitterness of last night's defeat, lies at his training quarters telling his sympathetic admirers how he did not do it.

NEW DIRECTORIES.

Tri-State Telephone Company Distributing New Lists.

Benjamin L. Berg, superintendent of the Tri-State Telephone Company this morning began the distribution of new Tri-State directories. The directory includes the district of Fayette county, and its preparation shows great care and completeness. The book contains the names of about 2,900 subscribers. The directories are now ready for distribution and may be had at the local office.

WOMAN IS FINED ON THANKSGIVING MORN.

Lucy Layton Assessed Costs of Several Turkeys in Police Court. Was Disorderly.

Although vehemently protesting her innocense before Burgess A. D. Soisson in police court this morning, Lucy Layton of the Pinnacle district was fined $10 this morning for disorderly conduct, general nuisance and drunkenness. Chief Rottler made the arrest last night, claiming the prisoner was acting in a disorderly manner on the streets.

Mrs. Layton was supported in her testimony by her brother, Major Sidebottom, who sustained the contention that she was not acting at all disorderly. Chief Rottler told of seeing the woman standing at the corner of Arch and Main streets for several minutes, then crossing the street and giving sidewise glances at a foreigner standing nearby. She then continued out the alley and was placed under arrest.

Burgess Soisson declared that complaints concerning the woman's conduct were so numerous that this would be the last time he would have anything to do with the case. The next time the woman is arrested, the Burgess said, he will insist upon the officer making an information and sending her to Uniontown. The Burgess then assessed the woman a fine of $10.

There are no prisoners in the lockup now, all of them having either served their time or were released by the Burgess to eat their turkey dinner at home if they are lucky enough to have a home and turkey dinner to eat.

ASK APPROPRIATION FOR LOCAL HOSPITAL.

Dr. T. H. White and H. P. Snyder, Trustees of the Cottage State hospital appeared yesterday before Bromley Wharton, representative of the State Board of Charitable Institutions for Western Pennsylvania and asked the appropriation of former years of $20,000 for the Cottage State hospital.

In addition to this the trustees asked that they be allowed $600 for improvements to consist mainly of painting the buildings and adding such small repairs as might be required. Mr. Wharton assured them it was not necessary to devote a large portion of their time to presenting these requests as he felt that they were perfectly fair and that the additional appropriation for painting and repairing would be allowed.

A delegation consisting of Isaac Semans, Dr. Gaddis, R. F. Hopwood and Miss Wilson the Superintendent of the Uniontown hospital were present and were asking an appropriation of $40,000 for the institution at that place. Their appeal took up a large portion of the day, and they were in turn followed by a delegation from Mt. Pleasant who were asking an increase in their appropriation for the Mt. Pleasant institution.

Rain Is Expected.

Unless all signs fail and the weather department is wrong rain will make its appearance before the close of Thanksgiving thus giving another reason to be thankful.

DELINQUENT TAX WARRANTS TO FLY THICK AND FAST TOMORROW.

Collector Brown Receives Communication From County Treasurer Asking for Immediate Settlement.

TO INVESTIGATE FIRE FIGHTERS.

County Commissioners Warned to Guard Against Frauds in Payment.

UNIONTOWN, Nov. 26.—Auditor General Young of Harrisburg has advised the County Commissioners to take utmost precautions to prevent fraud in the matter of fire fighters who are entitled to State aid for fighting fires during the past summer.

Mr. Young says opportunities are plentiful for irregularities, especially in the number of hours charged for, and urges great care on the part of the Commissioners.

State May Share Cost of Bridge.

After bids for the construction of a bridge from Monongahela City to the edge of Forward township, Allegheny county, had been tabulated yesterday at a joint meeting of the County Commissioners of Allegheny and Washington counties, a technical point of law was raised as to whether the State is not obliged to help pay for the improvement.

UNION SERVICES LARGELY ATTENDED.

Annual Thanksgiving Gathering Held in First Presbyterian Church.

FOUR MINISTERS PARTICIPATE.

Address of Morning Made by Rev. A. J. Ashe Who Refers in Appropriate Remarks to Season and Reviews History.

The annual union Thanksgiving service of the Protestant churches of town was held this morning in the First Presbyterian church, the program being much shorter than usual. But four ministers participated, where in the past practically all of them have been assigned parts. Rev. E. A. E. Palmquist of the First Baptist Church and president of the Ministerial Association presided at the service while the address of the morning was delivered by the Rev. A. J. Ashe, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. Ashe selected for his text the fourth verse of the hundredth psalm: "Enter into His gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise; be thankful unto Him and bless His name."

After reviewing the history of Thanksgiving day, from its inauguration following the first harvest in New England in 1621 by Governor Bradford, Rev. Ashe elaborated on the blessings of the past year and of the many things for which thanks should be given.

"The past has been a troublesome year. The panic came suddenly and without warning, rushing from all parts of this great country. Today the people hardly know from whence it came. Business was done largely on a credit basis but investors became timid. Money was withdrawn from circulation and business was depressed. People began to ask from whence it came and how long it would last. Some of them blamed it on the corporations; others on the President; some said it was the politicians and others declared it was the Republican party; some even said it was the Democrats trying to get into power while the Populists and the Socialists said 'I told you so' and proposed all kinds of remedies.

But the eye of God was watching and the hand of God was on the helm of the good ship of Prosperity. Business men deserve great credit for their wisdom and consideration. God has been good, for we never had such crops before. The good ship of Prosperity is again headed towards the sea of Prosperity and God has one hand on the compass and the other on the helm. He will see that all goes well.

We should be thankful for the peace of the nation; for coming prosperity, bounteous crops and good homes. But we are a wicked people still and there is a beast within our midst which invites the wrath of God. We do not know how to rid ourselves of it, but God may show the way.

Rev. Ashe probably referred to the liquor question, although he did not say so. His address was closed with a prayer.

Rev. Ellis B. Burgess of the Trinity Lutheran Church delivered a prayer of many things for which the people should be grateful. He paid a touching tribute to the late Rev. William A. Edie, and the late Rev. J. J. Huston, both of whom have died since the last union service. The benediction was delivered by Rev. C. M. Watson of the Christian Church. The auditorium of the Presbyterian Church was comfortably during the services.

MUST BE IN BY DECEMBER 1.

People Owing County Money Will Be Forced to Pay or Go to Jail.—No Excuse to be Received By Officials. Only Money Will Answer.

As George B. Brown, tax collector looked over his glasses and through them while he opened his morning mail he opined whether there would be so many thankful people in Connellsville in a few days as there were today. One of the letters was very interesting one from County Treasurer J. M. Howard asking him to make settlement of his 1907 duplicate forthwith. The amount of this duplicate is $2,266.18, which is due and owing and to the credit of this duplicate the collector has about $700 the balance being tied up in legal disputes and exonerations while a considerable sum is involved in the taxes of small tax payers ranging from $3 to $7. The legal disputes are protected but the little fellows who have been evading the payment of their taxes will have to come to time, and tomorrow the warrants will fly thick and fast. The letter says:

"You are required to pay over, forthwith, to the County Treasurer all money in your hands collected on all the unsettled tax duplicates in your hands." The letter then says that if the moneys are forthcoming there will be no penalties attached if received by December 1. The present County Treasurer calls attention to the incoming treasurer who will take office January 1, and that it is absolutely necessary to settle up.

Every person that owes taxes under any plan for the year 1907 will be made to pay or to go to jail. Tax Collector Brown stated this morning that if they were sent to jail the Commissioners could get them out if they wanted to but that he would either send the prisoners or the money for the duplicate after having received proper exonerations.

Chas. L. Davidson, clerk to the Commissioners, also heaped the load by saying that he wouldn't take any excuse for the taxes not being paid by December 1. "We will accept no excuse," he said, but Tax Collector Brown thinks he will accept what he has to give him, either the money or the men for jail and he is willing that the Commissioners have what he can get. However, tomorrow morning after the joyful Thanksgiving some more warrants will be issued and those who do not have the cash will be transported to the county bastile to settle as they may.

The County Treasurer makes a demand upon the Tax Collector for the 1908 taxes, but with this demand Collector Brown takes issue. He says that while monthly settlements are required he don't have to give up until December 15, and then he has some time. He points with pardonable pride to his 1908 record, as there is only a balance of $4,552.72 charged against him for the year, in which he considers money was the hardest in history to collect. There are a few big claims in this amount which will reduce it very considerably.

MT. PLEASANT BANK CASE NEARING END.

Testimony in Trial of Men Charged With Misapplying of Funds Concluded—Arguments Tomorrow.

The trial of Charles E. Mullen, ex-cashier of the Farmers and Merchants National Bank of Mt. Pleasant; President R. K. Hissem and E. H. Steinman, President of the Acme Lumber Company, who are charged with misapplying funds of the bank, was continued in United States District Court yesterday. All the testimony is in and arguments will be made tomorrow morning.

Steinman occupied the stand for an hour, but objections to the line of questions asked him took up all the time he was on the stand.

Mr. Mullen testified in regard to notes introduced by the prosecution and referred to as "dummy paper." He identified several notes brought in by the prosecution and showed by the minute books that they were renewed with the approval of the directors.

Attorney R. M. Gibson for the prosecution, objected to the bringing out of testimony as to the value of the plants of the Anchor Glass Company, and the Searchlight Manufacturing Company and the objections were sustained by Judge Young.

In Social Circles.

Brilliant Dance.

Large and brilliant was the first annual reception and dance of the Connellsville High School Alumni held last evening in the Armory under the committeeship of E. T. Norton, Dr. W. S. Goldsmith, T. Clifford Edmonds, L. J. Shaw and C. M. Cecil. Over one hundred and twenty-five couple were present and the evening throughout was one of much enjoyment.

In the receiving line was: E. T. Norton, Kirk Renner, Fred Frisbee, Dr. W. S. Goldsmith, Mrs. H. F. Atkinson, Mrs. J. M. Young, Miss Gertrude Myers and Miss Grace Artman.

Never did the spacious auditorium look more attractive. Class and college pennants were hung across the hall while on the walls were artistic drapings of large American flags. Over the balcony was black bunting bearing the name of the organization. "The Connellsville High School Alumni." The letters were made of white felt which with the black background presented a very attractive appearance.

Dancing was commenced at 8:30 o'clock and was indulged in throughout the evening. Music was furnished by Kiferle's orchestra and a buffet luncheon was served throughout the evening. A feature of the dance was the pretty gowning of the ladies and the large number of out-of-town guests present.

Among the out-oftown guests present were: Miss Laura Elkins of Indiana, the guest of Miss Catherine Porter. Miss Margurite Singer of Pittsburg, the guest of Miss Anna Mary Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Renner, Miss Mayme Lynch, Harry Fortney, Howard Henderson, Albert Strickler, of Scottdale; Miss Marie Short, Miss Mary Mong, Miss Helen Fleunlken, Miss Brown and Earl Porter of Dawson.

Birthday Anniversary.

Well appointed was a birthday party given last evening by H. A. Glotfelty at his home on East Fairview avenue in honor of his thirty-second birthday anniversary. Thirty-two of his most intimate friends were present to assist in celebrating the happy event. The evening was spent in various social amusements until 10 o'clock when the guests were invited into the dining room where an elegant supper was served, the menu consisting of all the delicacies of the season. The center piece was a huge boquet of chrysanthemums. At the place of each the guests was a chrysanthemum as a souvenir. Mr. Glotfelty was the recipient of many handsome and useful presents. The evening was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Breakiron-Hutchinson.

A very pretty wedding was that of Miss Helen Hutchinson daughter of Mrs. Mary M. Hutchinson and Edward Breakiron of Smithfield which was solemnized at the home of the bride, Rev. J. Walter Carpenter officiating. Following the ceremony was a prettily appointed wedding dinner.

Mr. Breakiron is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Breakiron of Smithfield and is bookkeeper in the Smithfield bank. Guests were present from Uniontown, Brownfild and Smithfield. Mr. and Mrs. Breakiron will reside in Smithfield.

BIG LINER RUNS DOWN SHIP IN DENSE FOG.

Craft With Eighty Passengers on Board Cut in Half Today Off Sandy Hook.

QUARANTINE, STATEN ISLAND, Nov. 27.—(Special.)—It is reported here than the Panama Steamship Company's steamer Finance was in a collision off the Hook during a fog with a White Star liner and that the former steamer has been sunk. This report is confirmed at the office of the steamship company but up to the present no particulars of the collision have been obtained, nor it it known if there is any loss of life.

The vessel Finance lost her way in the dense fog that has held fleeting liners off the Hook since Monday. The Finance was cut in half and sank almist immediately. She had on board 80 passengers and a large crew. It is not known whether there is any loss of life until the lifesavers return from the vessel, which will probably be late this afternoon. The first knowledge of the collision came to the observer in the marine tower when the fog lifted shortly after 10 o'clock. The Finance was then seen lying with her decks submerged and with her funnels and mast stuck upright.

COULTER NAMED MAJOR.

Is Elected Head of Second Batallion of Tenth.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 26.—Captain Henry W. Coulter, of Greensburg, was last night elected major of the Second batallion, Tenth regiment, N. G. P. The election was held at the Monongahela House and was largely attended. The other candidates were Captain Edward Martin, of Company K, Waynesburg, and Captain George C. Barr, of Company H, Washington. Coulter's election was made unanimous.

Captain Harry Dunn, First Lieutenant Roy B. Koffer and Second Lieutenant P. W. Hetzel of Connellsville, attended the meeting.

DIES IN PITTSBURG.

Mrs. Nora P. Smith Former Connellsville Resident Passes Away.

Mrs. Nora Pinney Smith, aged 34 years, wife of Harry T. Smith, a former well known resident of Connellsville, died Tuesday morning at her late home in Pittsburg. Funeral services were held from the family residence this morning at 10 o'clock. The body will arrive in Connellsville this afternoon on B. & O. train due here at 4:40 and will be interred in Hill Grove cemetery. Deceased is a daughter-in-law of Frank Smith, of Connellsville.

JURY CANNOT AGREE.

Gunness Murder Trial May Have to be Reheard.

LAPORTE, Ind., Nov. 26.—The jury in the case of Ray Lamphere charged with the murder of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children, resumed deliberations after breakfast today. The judge permitted the jurors to go to bed last night after six hours deliberation with four ballots failed to show any prospect of a speedy agreement. It is generally believed by the attorneys on both sides that an agreement is impossible.

NEW PUBLIC PRINTER.

Samuel B. Donnelly of New York Named by President.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—President Roosevelt today announced the resignation of Public Printer John F. Leech and the appointment in his place of Samuel B. Donnolly, of New York. Mr. Leech will be given back his old position as head of the printing bureau of the Philippines. Mr. Donelly was formerly president of the International Typographical Union.

Thief Takes Missionary Boxes.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bishop was entered by burglars last night some time after midnight. A purse containing a small sum of money and several missionary boxes were taken from a chiffonier drawer.

WE NEVER TELL A LIE

Gorman & Co.

"Sell Good Shoes Cheap."

There are THREE REASONS why we do it.

The First is that every pair of Shoes comes direct from the manufacturers and that saves us the middleman's profit.

The Second Reason is we sell for cash. We do not make our customers who do pay cash pay for some one else's bill, who do not pay their bills at all.

Third and Greatest Reason is that we do not spend large sums of money for advertising, such as hand bills, mailing cards, booklets, bill posters and other expensive advertising. Why should you pay this unnecessary expense? Our Shoes are made under our own name—there's where we save you 50 and 75 cents a pair on your Shoes—and they are just as good as any advertised Shoe made.

This illustration shows one of the attractive models. The others are just as smart looking. While the style of each model is exceptional, the splendid quality of the materials and the fine hand-tailoring are particularly noteworthy, and sure to convince you of their great superiority over all other $20.00 values.

Why pay a custom tailor $40.00 for an overcoat when you can get one here at $20.00 which is every whit as good?

SHEATZ ASPIRANT FOR SENATORSHIP.

State Treasurer Has Authorized the Use of His Name in This Contest

Philadelphia Nov 26—State Treasurer John O Sheatz of this city in an interview admits that he has authorized the use of his name as a candidate for United States senator from Pennsylvania in opposition to Senator Boies Penrose

"The suggestion that I become a candidate was made to me several months ago but it was not until Thursday of last week that I received a letter from Captain McJunkin asking me to become a candidate" said Mr Sheatz The request he said was the outcome of a conference held at State college and he had written to Captain McJunkin authorizing the use of his name Mr Sheatz said he could talk no further on the matter until he had heard from those interested in the movement and particularly those in the western end of the state

THE WEEKLY COURIER is the recognized organ of the Connellsville coke trade. It has especial value as an industrial journal and an advertising medium for such interests.

THURSDAY EVE'G., NOV. 26, 1908.

WHY CONNELLSVILLE GIVES THANKS.

Thanksgiving Day was originally set apart by the early Puritans in the early days when America was a howling wilderness inhabited by a primitive population of uncivilized red men and equally bloodthirsty wild beasts. The Puritans gave thanks because they were still alive amid the dangers that beset them on every side, and we continue to give thanks for much the same reasons.

It is true that we have had many additional reasons on more happy Thanksgiving Days, but there are times when we have had little more to be thankful for than the Pilgrim Fathers did; for example, the Thanksgiving Day of 1907 found the nation facing a gloomy outlook. The financial world was in the destroying grasp of a wild-eyed panic which was paralyzing industry and throttling business, bankrupting merchants and robbing labor of its employment, creating poverty and distress, want and suffering in the land, with no hope of better conditions in the immediate future and no promise of when its devastating influences would be stayed.

We have reason on this Thanksgiving Day to be thankful that conditions have reversed themselves; that the black clouds of adversity have rolled away and the sunshine of returning prosperity floods the land with its grateful warmth and cheering effulgence. We are assured of a prompt adjustment of the industrial-disturbing Tariff revision. The long-continued and blighting drouth promises soon to be broken. The railroads have turned in their orders for steel. The mills are starting up and the demand for coke assures the early resumption of practically every coke oven in the Connellsville region, which means the oncoming of high tide in local business circles.

We have reason to be thankful that prosperity is returning on wings and that one of her abiding places will be Connellsville and the coke region.

DON'T CHASE RAINBOWS IN AIRSHIPS.

Since the election many of our Democratic contemporaries have been somewhat pessimistic about the return of good times. They seem to think that all the coke ovens of the Connellsville region ought to have been in blast the week following Taft's election in order to fulfill Republican campaign predictions.

A number of the ovens were in blast within the week, but not all of them are in blast yet. That was not the Republican hope nor the Republican promise; but it was confidently predicted a few weeks before the election that Taft's election meant an unhesitating and reasonably prompt return to prosperity, while the election of Bryan meant recession and to many spelled ruin.

The Republican restoration is coming more rapidly than the most optimistic dared to hope. We see it all around us in the preparations to fire up idle coke ovens in the Connellsville region, in the anticipation of increased business by the railroads, in the prediction of shippers that there is danger of a car famine next spring. The improvement in industrial conditions is not confined to the Connellsville coke regions, but is common to all lines and districts.

The business interests are confident of the situation and are building upon it without hesitation. It is nevertheless best not [illegible] the future too heavily. Th[illegible]mon fault with enthusiasts. [illegible] coming along fast enough without any chasing of rainbows in airships.

NOT SO SERIOUS A PROBLEM.

The problem of dealing wisely with the foreign labor which comes to our country commonly with the intention of remaining only long enough to accumulate a competence in this land of liberal wages calls forth the following suggestions from the Washington Reporter:

> If we can inculcate the right ideas and train the foreigner to look upon this country as his future home, and educate him to the best American ideals there is some salvation for our country. He must be educated. He must be given religious instruction; he must be surrounded by the best influences. Conditions must be changed so that he will find it necessary to adapt himself to American ideas instead of his own. We must remove temptation and give to him some of the chances and opportunities which we so proudly boast are open to all the peoples of the world.
> The problem of the alien is one which is today confronting the Christian, patriotic people of this county and State and it is a problem which must be solved not only for their salvation but for our own.

Our common schools are doing more to solve this problem than any other influence. The alien who comes here and drifts back home is a shifting quantity who may at any time be regulated or eliminated if the lawgivers in their wisdom see fit to do so; and those who remain and become citizens or residents of the country usually raise children whom our public schools Americanize and our laws endow with rightful citizenship. There is no trouble about the children. They make good citizens, as do most of their parents. Much of our foreign labor is industrious, honest and thrifty; and there is no more law-abiding citizen than the honest man who by his industry and thrift has accumulated property interests however small.

There is no occasion for alarm over the situation, but only for reasonable care in preventing the dumping upon our free soil of the Undesirables.

THE BUSINESS WAY TO BOOM A TOWN.

The Washington Record believes in booming that town on business principles. It makes this eminently practical suggestion:

> The pressing need of the hour in Washington is for a man of parts, a level-headed, able-brained, warm-hearted, social fellow, with business sagacity, truthfulness and honor. A man on whom all factions could unite and in whom all have confidence, to get out and hustle for Washington. Such a man could achieve wonders. If he were given carte blanche by the moneyed men of the town and county, he would have a sure enough connection with the Wabash railroad put substantially on its feet and the Great West brought to our very doors. There's no doubt about that.
> He would then land a score or more of desirable manufacturing plants which would revolutionize the community. Of this there could not be the shadow of a doubt. He would make Greater Washington a verity and would give an impetus to business which would be wonderful to behold. In this age, towns as well as individuals must get a move on.

The idea is excellent, provided the need of the hour can be obtained. The particular man described by our contemporary is a rare bird and hard to get. The average business man would hesitate to give any agent so free a hand as is contemplated by The Record unless such agent was a tried and trusty man.

But within reasonable limitations, such an agent is a valuable employe of any pushing and progressive community. The trouble with the live town is that its business men always have enough of their own business to attend to. They cannot spare the time and effort necessary to run down and look up all manner of industrial and other propositions which promote the advancement of the town. It is necessary, in order to make headway in these aggressive times, to put this work in the hands of a competent man who can devote his undivided time and energy to it.

Any other method is false economy in every point of view.

THE POOR AND THEIR CARE.

Indiana county for many years maintained the "farming-out" plan of caring for its indigent poor, with such deplorable results that the collective system was finally substituted.

The County Home always has been, and perhaps always will be, a source of public scandal; and it is not strange that Indiana county's almshouse should have been the subject of such gossip; but an investigation by the Indiana Gazette disproves the assertions and confirms the wisdom of the people's judgment.

Fayette county has long pursued the plan of caring for its indigents at a comfortable almshouse, and while hints of graft have sometimes been made, especially under former Democratic administrations, it has never been accused of that mismanagement which means the mistreatment of the inmates; and, upon the whole, it has been managed in a businesslike and humane manner.

Public sentiment in Fayette county has always been considerate of unfortunate humanity and the fact is creditable to the hearts of the citizens.

Indian Summer weather.

We are thankful for some rain and snow, and we will be more thankful for some additions thereto.

Nature smiled on Thanksgiving Day, but if she frowns it will be in a good cause. Mother Earth needs the tears as well as the smiles.

Thanksgiving Day is both sunny and gusty. If it weeps, its feminine character will be proven.

Connellsville has especial reason to be thankful this year because the deal for its postoffice site has been closed which insures an early completion of the building.

The drouth seems to be bad for man and beast and nature. The whooping cough and the measles, the foot and mouth disease, the fire-swept forests and the dwindled streams tell the tale of water's necessity.

The Coulters are a race of warriors. The family roster contains a General, a Colonel and a Major.

The capsule method of scientific farming as practised in Westmoreland county didn't kill any worms, but it caught a number of suckers.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Western Penna—Partly cloudy on Thursday, rain or snow and colder at night or Friday.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

In full swing at this store. Sensible gifts the talk of every one this year. A desire on the part of every one to give something useful. We are anxious to help you as much as we can with your choosing. Want to make your shopping a pleasure and that's one reason for asking you to do as much of your buying as you can now and not put it off until the last minute. From now on we ask you to do as much of your shopping as you can during the morning hours. Also some things to mention this week that because of the prices at which they are marked you will stand a very slim chance of finding here after this week.

TABLE LINENS.

These should have been for a Thanksgiving sale but for some reason they were not. Every piece in this lot is Reid's linen and you know the value of that old Scotch name when connected with table linens. These we show are patterns that will not be made the coming spring. Some of them have no napkins to match. But because of these reasons there's a saving to you of from 25 to 60 cents the yard. 72-inch bleached damask, two patterns, have 24 inch napkins to match; regular $1.50 quality, linen $1.25 the yard. Napkins $4.00 the dozen. 72-inch bleached damask, three patterns no napkins to match, regular $2.00 quality, priced at $1.50 the yard. 72-inch bleached damask, same grade that we have sold you for $2.50 the yard, $2.00 the yard.

Plain Linen Sets.—Beautiful patterns, some the new round designs. 72X108, 22-inch napkins, $8.00; 90X90 cloths, 22 inch napkins, $10.00; hemstitched sets 66X122, with 19-inch napkins, $10.00, 70X142 inch cloths, with 20 inch napkins, $12.00.

WHITE SPREADS.

70X84 inches and priced at $1.00 each. Not too many of these, but all we could get just now. Regularly sold for $1.25 and we think you'll appreciate these just now.

DRESS GOODS AND SILKS.

It is time to look after dress patterns of woolen fabrics and silks. These stocks have been prepared for a large gift trade the next four weeks. Start at the Danish cloth, which is a new fabric under an old name, half wool, at 20 and 25 cents the yard, and from that on up to the more expensive broadcloths and silks at $3 to $3.50 the yard, and a splendid assortment to choose from at the prices in between. If you find it inconvenient to come just now we'll submit samples of any material.

SILK PETTICOATS.

Say the $5.00 ones. Think we have enough of these to last during the Christmas rush, but you can be certain of getting the color you want if you buy now. They make a very acceptable present and we've a $5.00 petticoat here now that's worth buying. Best we have ever seen for the price.

HOLIDAY UMBRELLAS.

Our Holiday Umbrellas are here now. From $1.00 up to $10.00 are the prices. Umbrellas here that you will be proud to give to any one. Biggest showing around prices $3.50 to $5.00.

NEW NECKWEAR.

A showing of neckwear novelties priced at 25 and 50 cents. Prettiest and largest showing that we have had for sometime. Novelties that you would expect to pay more for and that you'll find shown everywhere.

PURSES, POCKETBOOKS AND SHOPPING BAGS.

On Monday November 30, we will have our holiday line of these complete. Some of these are here now, others are coming in every day and we have them all promised in time to show Monday. You'll not find as large an assortment of these shown elsewhere in this vicinity and we ask you to look over this showing early before many of the pretty ones are sold.

NEWS OF A DAY IN SCOTTDALE.

MT. PLEASANT TO BE HERE.

Fayette County Thirsty Ones Visiting Today.—Mrs. John V. Stoner Recovering From Operation—Thanksgiving Meeting Tonight.

SCOTTDALE, Nov. 26.—Last night chalk artists made the stone sidewalks of town fairly glare with advertisements of the football game this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the Mt. Pleasant Scholastics and our own Scholastics will meet. The game should be a good one, and the team is congratulated on getting a date with so strong a combination as the Mt. Pleasant boys have.

Tonight's Meeting.

The Thanksgiving evening meeting is scheduled for the Presbyterian church when at 7:30 Rev. W. H. McCullough, pastor of the Homewood United Presbyterian church, will deliver his famous lecture, on "Abraham Lincoln." A silver offering will be received.

Mrs. Stoner Recovering.

John V. Stoner was at Mt. Pleasant Wednesday visiting his wife who was operated on for appendicitis this week. He found Mrs. Stoner to be getting along in as good a state as could be looked for after the operation.

Penny Day in Schools.

The Scottdale schools all observed Wednesday as an offering day for the benefit of the Westmoreland hospital. The children all contributed, from pennies up to larger amounts, and quite a large sum was realized from the custom.

Got Nearly All Votes.

H. B. Strickler, a former resident of town, who has been engaged in civil engineering and prospecting work in New Mexico, was a candidate for county surveyor there at the last election. There were 397 votes cast for the office, and Mr. Strickler received 396 while his opponent received one.

Fayette Comes Visiting.

This is a holiday when the rum parlors of Fayette close their doors and the thirsty ones go drinkless, if they have forgotten to lay in a stock or don't have a friend. Westmoreland county bars remain open for business, and there is always a large influx of thirsty ridden ones from Fayette county on such a day.

Was in Greensburg.

Tax Collector S. B. McMillan spent Wednesday in Greensburg conferring with the county commissioners regarding the approaching settlement of state and county taxes which is set for December 15. At that time the taxes are overdue and the delinquents are in danger of forcible collection.

WHAT CAUSES DYSPEPSIA?

And Incidentally Constipation, Coated Tongue, Nervousness, Headache, and Other Symptoms.

Did you ever know that the Stomach is a churn? That just as soon as you are done eating, the healthy stomach commences to roll the food around, and mixes it thoroughly with the juices of the stomach?

And did you know, dear reader, that if the stomach is run down or flabby, so that it cannot do the churning, that dyspepsia is the result?

If the food is not churned, it lays heavily on your stomach, turns sour, and causes all kinds of distressing symptoms, such as headache, coated tongue, constipation, etc.

you, the way to cure dyspepsia is to fix you, theway to cure dyspepsia is to fix the churn, or in other words, build up the stomach so that it will properly mix the food.

If you have dyspepsia and want to get rid of it before it gets rid of you, go to A. A. Clarke, the druggist, and get a large box of Mi-o-na tablets. The cost is only 50 cents, and every reader of The Courier is welcome to his or her money back if Mi-o-na does not cure.

Mi-o-na is the great stomach tonic, worst and most obstinate cases of indigestion. It quickly cures sea or car sickness and vomiting of pregnancy.

Mi-o-na is the great stomach tonic, one or two tablets will stop sea or car sickness, vomiting of pregnancy, and will instantly tone up the worn out stomach the morning after the social session.

TOMB FOR INDIAN CHIEF.

Memorial Will Give Complete History of Red Man.

The proposed monument at Cleveland, O., to Joc-o-sot, famous Sauk chief, whose bones are now interred in Erie cemetery at Cleveland, will be a time defying record of the white man's invasion of America detailed from the point of view of the red man.

Chief Thunderwater, who is heading the movement for the erection of the $25,000 monument to the memory of the departed war chief, showed his plans at the office of Director Cooley of the board of public service of Cleveland.

The water color sketches which he displayed showed a front view of the whole monument and detailed views of the bronze tablets with which it is to be adorned.

The monument will be thirty feet high and will be located in the center of a stretch of high ground near the entrance of Highland Park cemetery. A mass of granite bowlders will form the roof and walls of the tomb. These will serve as the support for a twenty-two ton bowlder, upon which will stand the bronze figure of an Indian chief with outstretched arm and hand pointing toward the east.

Following the custom of the Sauks, the head will be shaved excepting at one place near the crown. The scalp will be adorned with porcupine quills. Chief Thunderstorm has given personal attention to all these details in the working out of the bronze figure.

The most striking feature will be the hieroglyphics carved on the bowlders surrounding the tomb. They will reveal the Indian's viewpoint of American history since the coming of the whites. Chief Thunderwater will prepare a complete translation, which, when written out, will be placed in the memorial chamber, together with a number of relics.

Chief Thunderwater declares that the real American flag would be revealed to whites for the first time at the dedication of the monument.

"There will be no more wars between the whites and the Indians, so we may as well reveal our flag," said the chief. "There will be 500 Indians in Cleveland at the dedication ceremonies, and the event will attract thousands of people."

SCARLET FEVER.

A Scourge of White Races in All Ages and Countries.

Now that smallpox, thanks to compulsory vaccination, has become a rarity in civilized communities, scarlet fever steps forward as the worst of the eruptive diseases of childhood. It is a malady of enormous antiquity. Thucydides, writing nearly 500 years before the beginning of our era, called it a heritage from the remote past. It has scourged the white races in all ages and all countries, and the physicians of all schools have leveled their heaviest artillery upon it. Yet it remains a puzzle unsolved and an enemy unconquered even today. We are in doubt as to its cause, and there is no drug or antitoxin that will cure it. But despite all this the death rate from scarlet fever is steadily declining, and we may expect it to decline more and more as the years go by. The reason for this, I take it, lies in the fact that the modern doctor is a great deal more sparing with pills and powders than his predecessor, and a great deal more lavish with water, air and antiseptics. In the old days it was customary to dose scarlet fever patients with all sorts of violent remedies in staggering quantities, and as a result many of them died. Today medicines are but minor auxiliaries in the sickroom, and both doctor and nurse devote their main energies to preventing a spread of the infection.—Delineator.

USE FOR A TELESCOPE.

Interesting Discovery One Woman Made by Use of the Glass.

"I thought it was a pretty fair sort of telescope for one that wasn't very big," said Uncle Silas. "I rigged it up in the attic by the high north window and had it fixed so it would swing around easy. I took a deal of satisfaction in looking through it, the sky seemed so wide and full of wonders, so when Hester was here I thought I'd give her the pleasure too. She stayed a long time upstairs and seemed to be enjoying it. When she came down I asked her if she'd discovered anything new.

"'Yes,' she says. 'Why, it made everybody's house seem so near that I seemed to be right beside 'em, and I found out what John Pritchard's folks are doin' in their outkitchen. I've wondered what they had a light there for night after night, and I just turned the glass on their windows. They are cuttin' apples to dry—folks as rich as them cuttin' apples!'

"And actually that was all the woman had seen! With the whole heavens before her to study, she had spent her time prying into the affairs of her neighbors! And there are lots more like her—with and without telescopes."—Christian Uplook.

A Worthy Desire.

An ambitious young Chicagoan called upon a publisher of novels in that city, to whom he imparted confidentially the information that he had decided to "write a book" and that he would be pleased to afford the publisher the chance to bring it out.

"May I venture to inquire as to the nature of the book you propose to write?" asked the publisher very politely.

"Oh," came in an offhand way from the aspirant for fame, "I think of doing something on the line of 'Les Miserables,' only livelier, you know!"—Lippincott's.

THEATRICAL NEWS.

Scene from "A Knight For a Day."

The Boy With the Boodle Tonight.

The most original in theme, realistic in effects, abounding in sensationalism, with clean and moral story of love, devotion, etc., are the truthful claims of Howard Hall's new play musical comedy drama, "The Boy With the Boodle," which comes to the Soisson Theatre tonight. Every scene is a marvel. Every climax is wrought with the most intense excitement, while as a scenic investure, it is complete. The third act, introducing the mirage on the desert presents a scene that holds the audience's keenest attention and it can be truthfully stated once seen never forgotten. The management has spared no expense or time in making "The Boy With the Boodle" the representative of its class.

A Knight for a Day.

Another one of those rare musical comedies, where the plot is of secondary consideration, but where tuneful melodies, budding mirth and pretty girls, run riot, such is a "Knight for a Day," the musical concoction served up to patrons of the Soisson Theatre, matinee and night, Saturday, November 28. The situations built around present day experiences, though the title somewhat belies that fact. Jonathan Joy, a waiter, fails to get his customary tip from Sir Anthony Oliver, and in revenge purloins the credentials of the nobleman and proceeds to become the titled gentleman with all that it implies for a brief period. The chorus works with enthusiasm and abandon. And incidentally it can distance many rivals for good looks.

A Trip to India.

Mirth and music will hold sway next Monday night at the Soisson Theatre on which occasion the Herald Square Opera Company will appear in the famous Broadway musical comedy success, "A Trip to India." The company has a complement of 20 players which includes a chorus of bewitchingly pretty and shapely girls. The production is embellished with magnificent costumes and special scenery. The engagement is for three nights and Wednesday matinee. On Tuesday and Wednesday respectively "The Mascot" and Mikado" will be presented. At Wednesday matinee "Girofle-Girofla."

THE OPSONIC TEST.

What It Showed the Man Who Smoked a Great Deal.

His friends knew that he would rather miss half an hour of a play than cut short his after dinner cigar, and they were astonished when he announced that he had quit smoking.

"What's the trouble?" he was asked.

"Opsonic test," he replied gloomily.

"What in the world is that?"

"I've been run down of late and feeling pretty blue. As there is consumption in my family, I consulted a specialist. He said I didn't have the disease yet, but he would tell me what my chances were of getting it. We are constantly breathing tuberculosis germs, he explained, but healthy blood has the power to destroy them. So he took a drop of my blood and inoculated it with a certain number of germs. In half an hour he examined it under the microscope and found that only half as many germs had been killed as should have been the case. Normal, healthy blood is said to have an opsonic test of 100, so my test was only 50. He advised me to build up my strength by sanitary living—lots of fresh air day and night, plenty of sleep, wholesome food and moderation in work and pleasure."

"Where does smoking come in?"

"He said that tobacco had an extraordinary effect in decreasing the power of the blood to destroy germs. Some men who smoke a great deal have an opsonic test of zero—that is, their blood has no effect whatever on germs. I am fond of my cigar, but when a specialist levels an opsonic test all cocked and primed at your head and says, 'Tobacco or your life,' what are you going to do but throw up your hands?"—New York Tribune.

DESOLATION ISLAND.

Kerguelen Land Is a Region of Perpetual Storms.

Of all places on earth outside the arctic and antarctic regions Kerguelen Land, in the Indian ocean, is the most isolated and inhospitable. Indeed, it is generally known to mariners not by its official title, but as Desolation Island.

Most nations have owned it by turns, but it has been sooner or later abandoned by them all as worthless, and this although it covers an area variously estimated at from 1,500 to 2,000 square miles. At present France is in nominal possession of it, she having annexed it in 1893.

The soil is utterly barren. Practically the whole of the interior is covered with snow fields of unknown depth, whence glaciers flow down to the sea. Where there are no snow fields there are morasses and hidden, treacherous mudholes.

The climate is probably the worst in the world. Terrific tempests follow one another practically without ceasing and are accompanied by torrents of ice cold rain, hail, sleet and snow. The Challenger expedition spent a month there, during which time there were only three fine days. And this was in December-January, when it is midsummer in those latitudes.

Its discoverer, M. Kerguelen Tremarec, although at first he professed to be enraptured with it, lived to confess that it was unfit for human habitation. "Not even Eskimos," he exclaimed, "could exist there."—Pearson's.

Spoiled His Appetite.

"Every bit of food on this table," said the serving lady to Lamson as he sat down to eat at the church supper, "was cooked by your wife."

"Oh, I don't mind," rejoined Lamson faintly. "I'm not a bit hungry, anyway!"—New York Times.

This woman says she was saved from an operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lena V. Henry, of Norristown, Ga., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered untold misery from female troubles. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death.

"One day I read how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it. Before I had taken the first bottle I was better, and now I am entirely cured.

"Every woman suffering with any female trouble should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

DUNBAR BOROUGH SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

Third Month Finds Them Holding Their Own and Good Work Being Done.

The third month of the Dunbar public schools closed November 20. The total enrollment is a little less than the total enrollment of the previous month. The enrollment of the primary rooms is eleven less than last month. This decrease is probably due to the custom of some parents of sending beginners "as long as the weather is nice." Some of the other rooms have slightly increased in enrollment. The average attendance and per cent. of attendance are about the same as last month.

In the report of the different rooms the first column denotes males, the second females, and the third total:

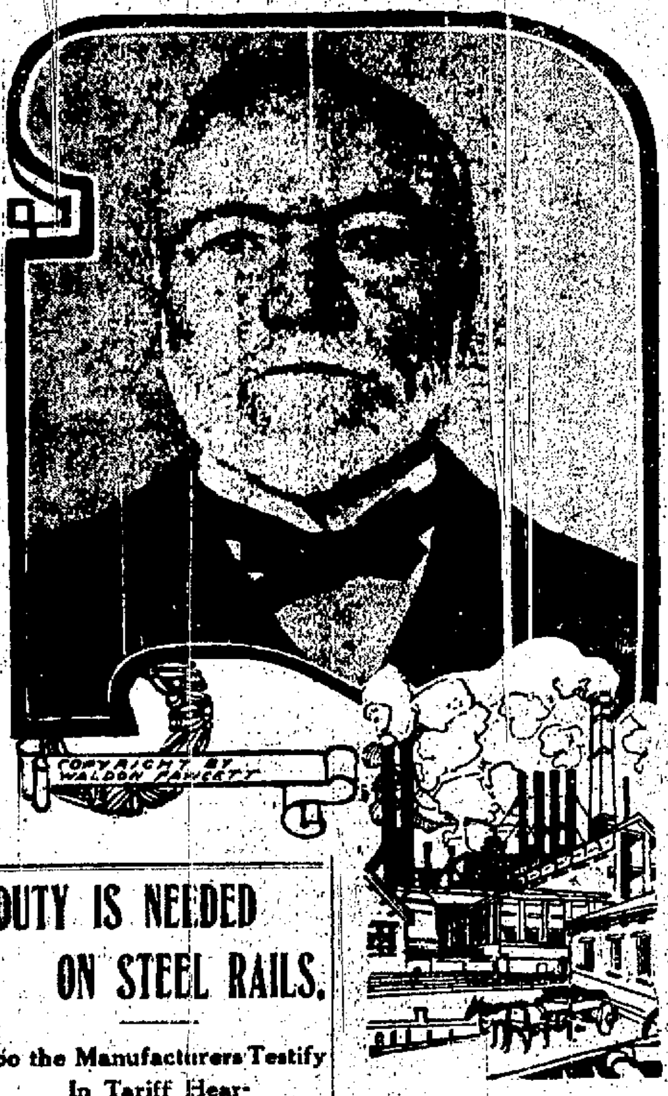
ANDREW CARNEGIE, WHO NOW FAVORS TARIFF FOR REVENUE ONLY.

Andrew Carnegie believes that the coming Congress should revise the tariff until it is a tariff not for protection, but for revenue. In an article in the Century Magazine he declares that present duties upon all articles used almost exclusively by the rich should be maintained or increased, that duties upon manufactured articles should be greatly reduced, while duties no longer needed should be abolished entirely. Concerning the steel business, in which he is greatly interested, he says, "The day has passed when any foreign country can seriously affect our steel manufacturers, tariff or no tariff."



DUTY IS NEEDED ON STEEL RAILS.

So the Manufacturers Testify In Tariff Hearing.

DON'T AGREE WITH CARNEGIE.

Representatives of Manufacturers In Other Lines of Iron and Steel Products Admit Duties May Be Reduced Without Hurting Business.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Andrew Carnegie, his wealth, his views on the steel tariff and his claim that it costs less to produce steel in this country than abroad offered a fertile field for the interrogations of the ways and means committee of the house. The tariff inquiry on the metal schedule produced several surprises, not the least of which was the voluntary declaration by several manufacturers of iron and steel products that their industry could stand a reduction in duty.

The steel rail men disagreed entirely with Mr. Carnegie's views as expressed in his widely discussed magazine article favoring a reduction in rails. Unanimously they claimed that Mr. Carnegie had been out of the steel business so long that his testimony was not valuable.

Mr. Carnegie's letter to Chairman Payne, in which he declined an invitation to appear before the committee, caused general disappointment.

The Democratic members and Representative Boutell of the Republican side of the committee did most of the questioning. Iron, steel, zinc and the manufacture of these metals were taken up.

J. A. Campbell, a manufacturer of wrought iron pipe, had the distinction of being the first manufacturer to tell the committee voluntarily that he is getting too much protection from the tariff. He said that the duty on lap-welded and butt-welded tube is prohibitive and can be reduced one-half and yet give ample protection. He also volunteered the information that manufacturers could stand a reduction of twenty cents a ton in the duty on round iron wire. He claimed the present rate on steel nails is necessary.

ELKINS ON THE TARIFF

Don't Believe There Will Be Conflict Between Taft and Cannon.

Hot Springs, Va., Nov. 26.—Senator Elkins of West Virginia came here, he said, to take seven baths that he missed during his summer stay.

"I don't believe Taft and Cannon are going to precipitate a rupture in the party just on the eve of a tariff revision," said Mr. Elkins. "We are going to have trouble enough over each one of the tariff schedules. I believe the free list and duties reduced on the free list and duties reduced on others, but this has all got to be done by compromise and these compromises have got to be made by the Republicans themselves, who, when an agreement is reached, must put up a solid front to the Democrats."

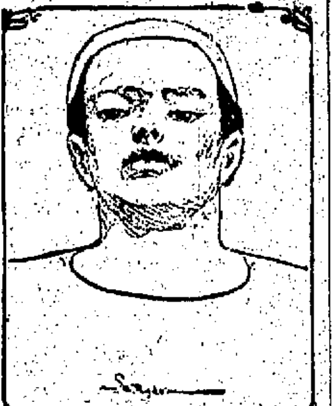
DORANDO DEFEATS MARATHON WINNER.

John J. Hayes Loses Long Race to Italian in New York Contest.

New York, Nov. 26.—Dorando Pietri of Capri, Italy, defeated John J. Hayes of this city in the renewal of the Marathon race at Madison Square Garden. The distance was 26 miles 385 yards, the same as the Olympiad Marathon, which Hayes won at Shepherds Bush, London, last summer. Dorando then fell from exhaustion and was helped across the line, but was disqualified. He proved to be the master last night and he held the lead from start to finish, finally winning by about sixty yards. Hayes was in the lead five times during the race but only for a few seconds each time. Dorando's time was 2:44:20 2-5, and Hayes's 2:45:05 1-5.



DORANDO PIETRI.

Ten thousand persons watched the contest and while partisan feeling ran high nothing more than good-natured raillery was the outcome. The last few miles of the race were exciting. In the twenty-fourth mile Hayes made another of the jumps to the front that he had been springing at intervals during the race, but Dorando, running strong, easily resumed the lead like a flash. This was repeated half a mile further on, Dorando again proving the stronger. The twenty-fifth mile was finished in 2:36:57 1-5.

Hayes weakened in the last half mile and the Italian won handily by about sixty yards.

Pennsylvania's Official Vote.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 26.—The official count of the vote cast in Pennsylvania for president, based upon that cast for the leading elector on each ticket, is as follows: Taft (Republican), 745,779; Bryan (Democrat), 448,785; Chafin (Prohibition), 36,694; Debs (Socialist), 33,913; Hisgen (Ind.), 1,057; Socialist-Labor, 1,222. Taft's plurality over Bryan is 296,994; majority over all, 224,108.

SHIP BURNS, 100 PERISH

Sardinia, Loaded With Arab Pilgrims, Destroyed Off Malta.

Valetta, Island of Malta, Nov. 26.—A disaster in which more than a hundred persons lost their lives occurred at the entrance to this port. The British steamer Sardinia of the Ellerman line, hailing from Liverpool and bound for Alexandria, with a crew of forty-four Englishmen, 11 first and six second cabin English passengers and nearly 200 Arab pilgrims aboard, caught fire and within a few minutes was a roaring furnace surrounded by clouds of black smoke, through which flames burst to a height of 200 feet.

So rapidly did the fire spread that the efforts of the crew to operate the fire apparatus proved useless, for it seemed but a moment before the upper works and masts crashed down upon the deck, while the boats were crushed.

No one could save himself except by jumping overboard and taking chances of being picked up. Assistance was hurried from all the warships in the harbor and from the shore, but rescue was impeded by the strong tide. Even the naval launches, which came as fast as they could be driven, were unable to go alongside.

The crew behaved with admirable courage. Captain Charles Littler, commander of the Sardinia, took the helm and directed his ship toward the shore so long as she could be navigated. He perished at his post. First Officer Frank Watson, all three engineers, Seagraves, Hislop and Neil, eighteen of the ship's company and two first class passengers, one of them a boy named Grant, are missing.

Fifty or more bodies have been recovered and seventy persons rescued. It is impossible at present to say just how many were drowned or burned to death, because the list of Arab pilgrims is incomplete, but the number will far exceed a hundred.

DEPUTIES SHOOT STRIKERS

Governor of New Jersey Sends Militia to Perth Amboy.

Perth Amboy, N. J., Nov. 26.—Following a conflict between strikers and deputy sheriffs at the factory of the National Fireproofing company at Keasbey, near here, in which six of the strikers were shot, Governor Fort dispatched four companies of the state guard at Trenton to the scene and today the streets are patrolled by 250 soldiers.

A feeling of intense excitement prevails, as the strikers declare the deputy sheriffs were not justified in firing upon them. Two of the wounded men are dying in the hospital here and the four other wounded men are painfully hurt.

Two weeks ago the men employed by the Raritan River Clay company went on strike for higher wages. They marched to the plant of the Perth Amboy Firebrick company and induced the men there to go out. Then each succeeding day the strikers, constantly increased in number, marched to other towns to induce other employes to leave their work.

The strikers, nearly all of whom are foreigners, say that they were given to understand before election that if Taft were elected their pay would be restored to $1.50 a day.

ENGINEER STICKS TO POST

Saves Lives of Passengers by Reducing Speed of Train.

Lacrosse, Wis., Nov. 26.—The heroism of Engineer Julius Severson probably saved the lives of many passengers in a wreck on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy at Portage Junction, Ill. As passenger train No. 47, the heaviest on the Burlington line, drew near Portage Junction a freight train loomed up just ahead.

Fireman Cater jumped and was killed. Engineer Severson stuck to his post and before the crash came succeeded in considerably reducing the speed of his train, which had been running sixty miles an hour. A brakeman was fatally hurt, but no passengers were injured. Six box cars were piled on top of the passenger engine, but Engineer Severson was dug out of the debris uninjured.

The passengers united in a written statement of Engineer Severson's bravery, the testimonial being forwarded to Superintendent Cunningham of the Burlington.

Begging Letters Net $100,000.

New York, Nov. 26.—Confessing that he had been sending begging letters to many rich men, William Abbott Foster, who was arrested at the Hotel Clarendon, where he occupied the "royal suite" with his family, was sentenced to six months on Blackwell's Island on a charge of vagrancy. The police say Foster secured upward of $100,000 by his letters.

Tornado Wrecks Schoolhouse.

Dubuque, Ia., Nov. 26.—A tornado swept Delaware county, wrecking outbuildings, killing livestock and injuring several persons. A schoolhouse near Manchester was wrecked, burying the teacher and five pupils. Miss Barringer, the teacher, and two children were severely injured.

Italian Kills American in Quarrel.

Newburg, W. Va., Nov. 26.—William Cox, an American stone mason, was shot and instantly killed in a quarrel here by Don. Mascarelli, Italian, age fifty. Mascarelli was captured. There is much feeling against the prisoner, and it is feared he will be lynched.

Ten Eyck Charged With Fraud.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 26.—James A. Ten Eyck, stroke of Syracuse university eight-oared crew, was arrested here for the Chicago police. He is charged with being a party in a pool game by which Chris Hansen was fleeced out of $1,360.

FIGHT TODAY FOR TITLE

Ketchel and Papke, Middleweights, to Meet in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Nov. 26.—Stanley Ketchel of Michigan and Billy Papke of Illinois cross arms here today for the middleweight championship of America. It will be a rousing battle, worth going miles to see for those who are pugilistically inclined, and many of the best known sports of the country have come here to see it. The crowd at the ringside will be one of the largest that has ever seen a fight in this part of the country.

While the odds favor Papke, to the man without a favorite it looks like an even thing. Each man is trained to the minute and is eager for the fray. Ketchel and Papke are old-time rivals, having faced each other twice. The first time Papke was beaten, but the second time Ketchel lost his championship title to "the Illinois Thunderbolt." Ketchel has not forgotten the terrific beating he received that time and is aching to wipe out the memory.

The two men will fight at 158 pounds. This seems to favor Papke, as he has never weighed much more, while Ketchel has had to train down to meet the required weight. Whether he has lost strength and endurance in doing so will be known when the story of the fight is told.

GEN. LECONTE EXECUTED

People of Haiti Retaliate for Cruel Punishments Inflicted.

Port au Prince, Haiti, Nov. 26.—The report that General Leconte, the Haitian minister of the interior, has been killed at Jeremie is confirmed.

General Leconte ordered the execution without trial of Captain Ostema of the gunboat Croyant and of two prominent citizens who protested against military conscription.

These outrages wrought the people up to a great degree of excitement and indignation. They armed themselves hastily and advanced against Leconte and his troops. There was practically no resistance. Leconte was taken prisoner and in his turn executed by a fusillade upon the same wharf where he had caused the killing of Ostema and the other two men.

BONNET VERY SEVERE

Denounces Prince and Princess de Sagan In Strong Language.

Paris, Nov. 26.—The proceedings in the suit of Count Boni de Castellane against his former wife, who was Miss Anna Gould of New York and who is now the wife of Prince Helie de Sagan, for the custody of his three children were characterized by a strong denunciation of the prince and princess by M. Bonnet, who represented Count de Castellane.

Prince Helie and the count glared at each other for four hours while M. Bonnet pleaded that the custody of the children must be confided to their grandmother, the Marquise de Castellane, because the marriage of Mme. Gould to the prince had polluted the atmosphere of their home.

DEMAND WORK OR WAR

London Army of Unemployed Makes Threat of Revolution.

London, Nov. 26.—Thousands of the unemployed of London, carrying a large banner bearing the words, "Work or Revolution, the Government Must Decide," marched through the fashionable districts of the city. This is the first of a series of similar demonstrations and, speaking of the procession, one of the leaders said:

"We are going to let the west end know that the east end does not intend to starve."

Harris a Receptive Candidate.

Columbus, O., Nov. 26. — Governor Harris has declared himself a receptive candidate for Senator Foraker's place. He said: "Appreciating as I do the requests of friends and members of the legislature, I have yielded to the extent of becoming a receptive candidate, but I have no coalition with any other candidate for United States senator and I am in no sense opposed to any of them. I had nothing to do in bringing about any of the conferences here in this city this week and nothing was done at any of them so as I am concerned."

Thunderstorm Sours Milk.

Sandusky, O., Nov. 26. — Thrifty housewives who have dismissed the iceman for the season were chagrined to find their milk supply soured by a regular midsummer thunderstorm.

Chicago Grain Market.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Fresh reports of damage to the Argentine crop of wheat caused moderate firmness in the local market today, prices at the close being ¼ cent lower to ⅜@½ higher. Corn and oats were weak, but provisions were steady. December options closed: Wheat, 103⅜@103½; corn,

PROMINENT LEADERS OF THE FOUR HUNDRED IN THE SUFFRAGIST RANKS.

Prominent among the leading women of New York's Four Hundred who will be present at the great meeting of suffragettes to be held in Carnegie Hall December 4 will be Mrs. George J. Gould, Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay and Mrs. Robert Goelet. With these social arbiters in full and active sympathy with the cause and with a host of other society women in close pursuit of the leaders there is no doubt that the movement for woman suffrage will be given a tremendous boost.

Just Like a Man.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton and a body of ladies from her church, all interested in woman's suffrage, once took a little newsboy from the gutter and educated him superbly. They sent him through school and college and finally made a minister of him. This young minister, the work of their hands, preached his first sermon in their church. That was a proud Sunday morning for the good ladies. They thought they had at last firmly planted among the male sex a strong and splendid supporter. So they filled the church that Sunday morning. Who could tell but that their young charge might preach in their honor a woman suffrage sermon? Imagine their emotion when the youth arose in the pulpit, looking calmly and even sternly over the congregation, and announced that his text would be from St. Paul:

"Let the women keep silence in the church."

DREAMERS ALL.

We are dreamers all in this dream of life,
And a very good dream, with its toil, its strife,
Its song and laughter, its love and cheer,
Its loss and worry and grief and fear.

We are dreamers all in a different way
In this toiling world of the workaday.
And, God be praised, in the dew, the dust,
There are dreams of comfort and dreams of trust.

We are dreamers all, from the child that leaps
To the gray haired prophet that crawls and creeps,
Dreaming, trusting and toiling on
To the dream of God on the hills of dawn.
—Baltimore Sun.

Ready For the Trial.

The average novelist, it is well known, thinks little of the average playwright, and the playwright thinks less, if possible, of the novelist.

At the Players' club in New York they say that Clyde Fitch at a dinner one time sat opposite a popular novelist. The novelist criticised the American play. He seemed to think very little of it. Finally, yawning, he said:

"When I am played out as a novelist I intend to write for the stage."

"Begin at once, then," said Mr. Fitch.

A Bulgarian Atrocity.

On his return to England from the Russo-Turkish war David Christie Murray, the novelist, went at once to Hawarden to report on the situation in the Balkans to Mr. Gladstone. He wore his campaigning overcoat, a wonderful creation of camel's hair lined with bearskin. As he was leaving Hawarden Mr. Gladstone, helping him on with his overcoat, asked, "Where did you obtain possession of this extraordinary garment, Mr. Murray?" "I bought it, sir, in Bulgaria," answered Murray. "Ah," said Gladstone, with a perfectly grave face and falling back a step to look at it, "I have had much to say of the Bulgarian atrocities of late years, but this is the only one of which I have had ocular demonstration."

Not a Member.

The rector of a rural English church was in London for a visit. A knotty theological point had presented itself for solution which required reference to the authorities. Being a guest of the Athenaeum club, whose extensive library was always a feature of interest, he resolved to make use of it. Approaching an attendant who, it happened, was but recently employed, he asked "whether Justin Martyr was in the library."

"I don't think he is a member, my lord," was the solemn reply, "but I'll go and ask the porter."

A Pathetic Appeal.

During the early days of street cars many of the conductors made money by "knocking down" fares. At one time the evil became so great that it was difficult to tell whom to trust.

An old fellow who was in hard luck found that it was necessary to get employment as a conductor, and he went to the president of one of the New York companies and asked him for a position.

"Do you really want the job, Bill?" asked the president.

"I do, indeed."

"All right, Bill," he answered. "You can have it, but for heaven's sake bring back the car!"

Truth Will Not Be Compelled.

Truth is such a fly away, such a sly boots, so untransportable and unbarrelable a commodity, that it is as bad to catch as light. Shut the shutters never so quick to keep all the light in it is all in vain. It is gone before you can cry "Hold!" And so it happens with our philosophy. Translate, collate, distill all the systems and it stands you nothing, for truth will not be compelled in any mechanical manner.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Making Her Reputation.

A well known young matron of Chicago is of such a high nervous temperament that if she drinks the very smallest amount of alcoholic stimulant before going to bed the result is sleeplessness for the remainder of the night. Some nights ago a number of friends dropped in for the evening, and the husband, who, by the way, is a southerner, suggested that he make a mint julep for each of the company. The suggestion was received with delight, and the juleps were promptly mixed.

In his wife's glass, however, he put only enough whisky to flavor the water, probably not more than a teaspoonful. Of this she sipped about half. The result, however, was the same. She was troubled with insomnia all night long, and it was not until 5 o'clock in the morning that she dropped off to sleep and, as a consequence, was not called for breakfast.

At 10 o'clock she came downstairs and hearing the voices of children on the front porch stopped to listen. Her heart filled with motherly pride as she heard her elder son, a boy of six, telling seven or eight children from the neighborhood that they must not make too much noise as his mamma was asleep. Imagine her horror, too, as the young hopeful added:

"She drank so much whisky last night that she couldn't come down to breakfast this morning."

A Lesson In Language.

"An Irish lawyer," said a Texas judge, "was examining a Mexican. The questions, after a deal of bullying, ran like this:

"'Understand, sor, that ye are to go on and state to the court what ye know about this case in yer own languidge.'

"'You want me to repeat the story in my own language?' asked the witness.

"'Oi do, sor. That's what Oi said.'

"Then the Mexican smiled and began:

"'Ete mujer venia a mia casa'—

"'Are ye thryin' to make fools of us all?' he roared. 'What's thot ye're saying anyhow?'

"'I am speaking my own language, as you told me to do,' said the witness.

"'Oi didn't mane for ye to spake yer own languidge when I said for ye to spake your own languidge. Can't ye spake as I'm spakin' to you?'

"'I can try, sir,' said the Mexican. And, with another smile he began:

"'Well, thin, yer honor, this gossoon come to my house and sez he to my old woman, says he, "I want to spake wid ye," says he.'

"'What do ye mane, sor, by spakin' in that way?' roared the lawyer.

"'Shure,' replied the witness, 'ye axed me to spake in the language ye use yerself, and shure I'm afther thryin' to obleege ye.'"

Conscience.

Conscience enables us not merely to learn the right by experiment and induction, but intuitively and in advance of experiment. So in addition to the experimental way whereby we learn justice from the facts of human history we have a transcendental way and learn it from the facts of human nature and from immediate consciousness.—Theodore Parker.

Beyond All Music.

At one of the Yorkshire inns, relates a Liverpool contemporary, there is a pianist who can improvise accompaniments to any song that any singer wishes to sing. He cannot read a note of music, yet, in the local vernacular, he "can play owt." Recently, however, he met with an unexpected check. A man hummed over an air, but the pianist failed to get the key. "Let's try it again," he said. And they tried it again. Still it was of no use. A third trial brought no better result. Then the pianist turned to the singer in anger and said: "Sitha, aw've tried tha on t' white 'uns and aw've tried tha on t' black 'uns and aw've tried tha on t' black and white 'uns mixed. It's no use. Tha's singing between t' cracks!"

His Last Job.

Bill Nye in his earlier days once approached the manager of a lecture bureau with an application for employment and was asked if he had ever done anything in that line.

"Oh, yes," said Bill.

"What have you done?"

"Well," replied Bill, "my last job was in a dime museum, sitting in a barrel with the top of my head sticking out—posing as the largest ostrich egg in captivity."

Diagnosed.

Dean Ramsay once told of a young Englishman who had taken a Scottish shooting and thought himself quite nationalized. Next year he met a genuine Scot of the old school at a German watering place and proceeded to pose as one himself, talking of Scotland and haggis and sheep's head and whisky, boasting of Bannockburn, professing devotion to Queen Mary and extolling Scott and Burns over all English writers. On taking leave of his friend he said, "Well, sir, next time we meet I hope you will receive me as a real countryman." "Weel," said the other, "I'm jest thinkin', my lad, ye're nae Scot, but I'll tell ye what ye are—ye're jest an improved Englishman."

INTO THE PRIMITIVE

Miss Leslie glanced at him, even more puzzled and startled by this outbreak than she had been by Blake's strange talk. But if Blake was angered, he did not show it.

"Say, Win," he remarked gravely, "I was going to take you down to the pool after supper, on a try with the bows. But I guess you'd better stay close by the fire."

"I'm Unprepared to Climb Precipices, Even Though My Costume Is That of a Savage."

"Yes; it is time you gave a little consideration to those who deserve it," rejoined Winthrope, with a peevishness of tone and manner which surprised Miss Leslie. "I tell you I'm tired of being treated like a dog."

"All right, all right, old man. Just draw up your chair, and get all the hot broth aboard you can stow," answered Blake, soothingly.

Winthrope sat down; but throughout the meal he continued to complain over trifles with the peevishness of a spoiled child, until Miss Leslie blushed for him. Greatly to her astonishment, Blake endured the nagging without a sign of irritation, and in the end took his bow and arrows and went off down the cleft, with no more than a quiet reminder to Winthrope that he should keep near the fire.

When, shortly after dark, the engineer came groping his way back up the gorge, he was by no means so calm. Out of six shots, he had hit one antelope in the neck and another in the haunch; yet both animals had made off all the swifter for their wounds.

The noise of his approach awakened Winthrope, who turned over, and began to complain in a whining falsetto. Miss Leslie, who was peering out through the bars of her screen, looked to see Blake kick the prostrate man. His frown showed only too clearly that he was in a savage temper. To her astonishment, he spoke in a soothing tone until Winthrope again fell asleep. Then he quietly set about erecting a canopy of bamboos over the sleeper.

Just why he should build this was a puzzle to the girl. But when she caught a glimpse of Blake's altered expression, she drew a deep breath of relief, and picked her way around the edge of her bamboo stakes, to lie down without a trace of the fear which had been haunting her.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Mark of the Beast.

MORNING found Winthrope more irritable and peevish than ever. Though he had not been called on watch by Blake until long after midnight, he had soon fallen asleep at his post and permitted the fire to die out. Shortly before dawn, Blake was roused by a pack of jackals, snarling and quarreling over the half-dried seafowl. To charge upon the thieves and put them to flight with a few blows of his club took but a moment. Yet daylight showed more than half the drying frames empty.

Blake was staring glumly at them, with his broad back to Winthrope, when Miss Leslie appeared. The sudden cessation of Winthrope's complaints brought his companion around on the instant. The girl stood before him, clad from neck to foot in her leopard-skin dress.

"Well, I'll be—dashed!" he exclaimed, and he stood staring at her open-mouthed.

"I fear it will be warm. Do you think it becoming?" she asked, flushing, and turning, as though to show the fit of the costume.

"Do I?" he echoed. "Miss Jenny, you're a peach!"

"Thank you," she said. "And here is the skirt. I have ripped it open. You see, it will make a fine flag."

"If it's put up. Seems a pity, though, to do that, when we're getting on so fine. What do you say to leaving it down, and starting a little colony of our own?"

Miss Leslie raised the skirt in her outstretched hands. Behind it her face became white as the cloth.

"Well?" demanded Blake soberly, though his eyes were twinkling.

"You forget the fever," she retorted mockingly, and Blake failed to catch the quaver beneath the light remark.

"Say, you've got me there," he admitted. "Just pass over your flag, and scrape up some grub. I'll be breaking out a big bamboo. There are plenty of holes and loose stones on the cliff. We'll have the signal up before noon."

Miss Leslie murmured her thanks, and immediately set about the preparation of breakfast.

When Blake had the bamboo ready, with one edge of the broad piece of white duck lashed to it with catgut as high up as the tapering staff would bear, he called upon Winthrope to accompany him.

"You can go, too, Miss Jenny," he added. "You haven't been on the cliff yet, and you ought to celebrate the occasion."

"No, thank you," replied the girl. "I'm still unprepared to climb precipices, even though my costume is that of a savage."

"Savage? Great Scott! that leopard dress would win out against any set of Russian furs a-going, and I've heard they're considered all kinds of dog. Come on. I can swing you into the branches, and it's easy from there up."

"You will excuse me, please."

"Yes, you can go alone," interposed Winthrope. "I am indisposed this morning, and, what is more, I have had enough of your dictation."

"You have, have you?" growled Blake, his patience suddenly come to an end. "Well, let me tell you, Miss Leslie is a lady, and if she don't want to go, that settles it. But as for you, you'll go, if I have to kick you every step."

Winthrope cringed back, and broke into a childish whine. "Don't—don't do it, Blake— Oh, I say, Miss Genevieve, how can you stand by and see him abuse me like this?"

Blake was grinning as he turned to Miss Leslie. Her face was flushed and downcast with humiliation for her friend. It seemed incredible that a man of his breeding should betray such weakness. A quick change came over Blake's face.

"Look here," he muttered, "I guess I'm enough of a sport to know something about fair play. Win's coming down with the fever, and's no more to blame for doing the baby act than he'll be when he gets the delirium, and gabbles."

"I will thank you to attend to your own affairs," said Winthrope.

"You're entirely welcome. It's what I'm doing— Do you understand, Miss Jenny?"

"Indeed, yes; and I wish to thank you. I have noticed how patient you have been—"

"Pardon me, Miss Leslie," rasped Winthrope. "Can you not see that for a fellow of this class to talk of fair play and patience is the height of impertinence? In England, now, such insufferable impudence—"

"That'll do," broke in Blake. "It's time for us to trot along."

"But, Mr. Blake, if he is ill—"

"Just the reason why he should keep moving. No more of your gab, Win! Give your jaw a lay-off, and try wiggling your legs instead."

Winthrope turned away, crimson with indignation. Blake paused only for a parting word with Miss Leslie. "If you want something to do, Miss Jenny, try making yourself a pair of moccasins out of the scraps of skin. You can't stay in this gully all the time. You've got to tramp around some, and those slippers must be about done for."

"They are still serviceable. Yet if you think—"

"You'll need good tough moccasins soon enough. Singe off the hair, and make soles of the thicker pieces. If you do a fair job, maybe I'll employ you as my cobbler, soon as I get the hide off one of those skittish antelope."

Miss Leslie nodded and smiled in response to his jesting tone. But as he swung away after Winthrope, she stood for some time wondering at herself. A few days since she knew she would have taken Blake's remark as an insult. Now she was puzzled to find herself rather pleased that he should so note her ability to be of service.

When she roused herself, and began singeing the hair from the odds and ends of leopard skin, she discovered a new sensation to add to her list of unpleasant experiences. But she did not pause until the last patch of hair crisped close to the half-cured surface of the hide. Fetching the penknife and her thorn and catgut from the baobab, she gathered the pieces of skin together, and walked along the cleft to the ladder-tree. There had been time enough for Blake and Winthrope to set up the signal, and she was curious to see how it looked.

She paused at the foot of the tree, and gazed up to where the withered crown lay crushed against the edge of the cliff. The height of the rocky wall made her hesitate, yet the men, in passing up and down, had so cleared away the twigs and leaves and broken the branches on the upper side of the trunk, that it offered a means of ascent far from difficult even for a young lady.

The one difficulty was to reach the lower branches. She could hardly touch them with her finger-tips. But her barbaric costume must have inspired her. She listened for a moment, and hearing no sound to indicate the return of the men, clasped the upper side of the trunk with her hands and knees, and made an energetic attempt to climb. The posture was far from dignified, but the girl's eyes sparkled with satisfaction as she found herself slowly mounting.

When, flushed and breathless, she gained a foothold among the branches, she looked down at the ground, and permitted herself a merry little giggle such as she had not indulged in since leaving boarding-school. She had actually climbed a tree! She would show Mr. Blake that she was not so helpless as he fancied.

At the thought, she clambered on up, finding that the branches made convenient steps. She did not look back, and the screen of treetops beneath saved her from any sense of giddiness. As her head came above the level of the cliff, she peered through the foliage, and saw the signal-flag far over near the end of the headland. The big piece of white duck stood out bravely against the blue sky, all the more conspicuous for the flocks of frightened seafowl which wheeled above and around it.

Surprised that she did not see the men, Miss Leslie started to draw herself up over the cliff edge. She heard Winthrope's voice a few yards away to her left. A sudden realization that the Englishman might consider her exploit ill-bred caused her to sink back out of sight.

She was hesitating whether to descend or to climb on up, when Winthrope's peevish whine was cut short by a loud and angry retort from Blake. Every word came to the girl's ears with the force of a blow.

"You do, do you? Well, I'd like to know where in hell you come in. She's not your sister, nor your mother, nor your aunt, and if she's your sweetheart, you've both been damned close-mouthed over it."

There was an irritable, rasping murmur from Winthrope, and again came Blake's loud retort. "Look here, young man, don't you forget you called me a cad once before. I can stand a good deal from a sick man; but I'll give it to you straight, you'd better cut that out. Call me a brute or a savage, if that'll let off your steam; but, understand, I'm none of your English kinds."

Again Winthrope spoke, this time in a fretful whine.

Blake replied with less anger. "That's so; and I'm going to show you that I'm the real thing when it comes to being a sport. Give you my word, I'll make no move till you're through the fever, and on your legs again. What I'll do then depends on my own sweet will, and don't you forget it. I'm not after her fortune. It's the lady herself that takes my fancy. Remember what I said to you when you called me a cad the other time. You had your turn aboard ship. Now I can do as I please; and that's what I'm going to do, if I have to kick you over the cliff end first, to shut off your pesky interference."

The girl crouched back into the withered foliage, dazed with terror. Again she heard Blake speak. He had dropped into a bitter sneer.

"No chance? It's no nerve, you mean. You could brain me, easy enough, any night—just walk up with a club when I'm asleep. Trouble is, you're like most other under dogs—'fraid that, if you licked your boss, there'd be no soup bones. So I guess I'm slated to stay boss of this colony—grand Poo Bah and Mikado, all in one. Understand? You mind your own business, and don't go to interfering with me any more! Now, if you've stared enough at the lady's skirt—"

The threat of discovery stung the girl to instant action. With almost frantic haste, she scrambled down to the lower branches, and sprang to the ground. She had never ventured such a leap even in childhood. She struck lightly but without proper balance, and pitched over sideways. Her hands chanced to alight upon the remnants of leopard skin. Great as was her fear, she stopped to gather all together in the edge of her skirt before darting up the cleft.

At the baobab she turned and gazed back along the cliff edge. Before she had time to draw a second breath, she caught a glimpse of Blake's palm-leaf hat, near the crown of the ladder tree.

"O-o-h!—he didn't see me!" she murmured. Her frantic strength vanished, and a deathly sickness came upon her. She felt herself going, and sought to kneel to ease the fall.

She was roused from the swoon by Blake's resonant shout: "Hey, Miss Jenny! where are you? We've got your laundry on the pole in fine shape!"

The girl's flaccid limbs grew tense, and her body quivered with a shudder of dread and loathing. Yet she set her little white teeth, and forced herself to rise and go out to face the men. Both met her look with a blank stare of consternation.

"What is it, Miss Genevieve?" cried Winthrope. "You're white as chalk!"

"It's the fever!" growled Blake. "She's in the cold stage. Get a pot on. We'll—"

"No, no; it's not that! It's only—I've been frightened!"

"Frightened?"

"By a—a dreadful beast!"

"Beast!" repeated Blake, and his pale eyes flashed as he sprang across to where his bow and arrows and his club leaned against the baobab. "I'll have no beasts nosing around my dooryard! Must be that skulking lion I heard last night. I'll show him!" He caught up his weapons and stalked off down the cleft.

"By Jove!" exclaimed Winthrope; "the man really must be mad. Call him back, Miss Genevieve. If anything should happen to him—"

"If only there might!" gasped the girl.

"Why, what do you mean?"

She burst into a hysterical laugh. "Oh! oh! it's such a joke—such a joke! At least he's not a hyena—oh, no; a brave beast! Hear him shout! And he actually thinks it's a lion! But it isn't—it's himself! Oh, dear! oh, dear! what shall I do?"

"Miss Genevieve, what do you mean? Be calm, pray, be calm!"

"Calm!—when I heard what he said? Yes, I heard every word! In the top of the tree—"

"In the tree? Heavens! Miss—er—Miss Genevieve!" stammered Winthrope, his face paling. "Did you—did you hear all?"

"Everything—everything he said! What shall I do? I am so frightened! What shall I do?"

"Everything he said?" echoed Winthrope.

"You spoke too low for me to hear; but I'm sure you faced him like a gentleman—I must believe it of you—"

Winthrope drew in a deep breath. "Ah, yes; I did, Miss Genevieve—I assure you. The beast! Yet you see the plight I am in. It is a nasty muddle—indeed it is! But what can I do? He is strong as a gorilla. Really, there is only one way—no doubt you heard him taunt me over it. I assure you I should not be afraid—but it would be so horrid—so cold-blooded. As a gentleman, you know—"

"No; it is not that!" broke in the girl. "He is right. Neither of us has the courage—even when he is asleep."

"My dear Miss Genevieve, this beast instinct to kill—"

"Yes; but think of him. If he is a beast, he is at least a brave one. While we—we haven't the courage of rabbits. I thought you called yourself an English gentleman. Are you going to stand by, and not lift a finger?"

"Really, now, Miss Genevieve, to murder a man—"

"Self-defense is not a crime—self-preservation. If you have a spark of manhood—"

"My dear—"

"For Heaven's sake, if you can't do anything, at least keep still! Oh, I'm sure I shall go mad! If only I had been drowned!"

"Ah, yes, to be sure. But really now, what you ask is a good deal for a man to risk. The fellow might wake up and murder me! Should I take the risk, might I—er—expect some manifestation of your gratitude, Miss Genevieve?"

"Of course! of course! I should always—"

"I—ah—refer to the—the—bestowal of your hand."

"My hand? I— Would you bargain for my esteem? I thought you a gentleman!"

PENNSY AND CORNELL TODAY.

They Meet on Franklin Field For Annual Game.

BIG CROWDS WITNESS CONTEST.

Ithaca Has Sent Fifteen Hundred of Her Students to Philadelphia—Cornell Eleven Outweighs Rivals by Average of Ten Pounds.

Philadelphia, Nov. 26. — Franklin field, the arena that witnesses old Pennsylvania's football battles at home, is ablaze today with the national colors. Mingled in masses and blotches and streaks are the red and blue of Pennsylvania and the red and white of Cornell, borne by the crowds assembled within the field to see the annual game between the eleven of Pennsylvania and her most formidable opponent.

It will be no puny struggle on Franklin field this afternoon. The game marks the close of the season for the two elevens, and the result will go far either toward justifying Pennsylvania's claim of the year's football championship or give that title undisputed to Harvard's undefeated eleven. Nobody knows that fact better than the eleven men who are defending the football honor of Pennsylvania. They will fight for victory with every ounce of their tremendous power until the last whistle blows.

On the other hand, the Ithacans have come here with a grim, stern determination to "do or die." Fifteen years of continuous defeat, save for one lone triumph in 1901, have whetted the appetite of the Cornellians and they hope to be the only team to beat Pennsy this year. Last year's strenuous struggle, won by Pennsylvania by the score of 12 to 4, and the no score tie game of the year before are remembered by the spectators, and they are on tiptoe with expectation of seeing an equally good game. Ithaca has sent here more than 1,500 of her students, and the Pennsylvania men are also out in full force, accompanied, as usual, by their women folk.

Penney's Eleven Lighter.

Cornell's eleven this year, like that of last year, outweighs Pennsylvania's at least ten pounds to a man. The powerful red and white rush line has not been extended this year, as it has been the aim of the coaches to save the men for the year's final great game. This week, however, doleful stories have been current of illness and lack of condition in the Cornell camp, but the yarns have been taken with the customary grain of salt. As the Cornell players assembled in their dressing rooms before the game no one would suspect that anything was the matter with any single one of them.

While the advantage of weight is with the Cornell eleven, it is declared by unbiased football authorities that the Pennsylvania team is speedier. The Pennsylvania men this year are almost all of the long, wiry, rangy type that gets into action quickly and keeps going. With Hollenback, possibly the best fullback of the year, and Manier and Means, halfbacks, Pennsylvania has a trio of kickers who can be depended upon to boot the ball as far as any of the wearers of the red and white. Scarlett and Bradley at the ends can get down the field on kicks about as fast as any pair of ends in the country, and Kienath and Miller are quarterbacks of which any team might well be proud.

The Cornell Stars.

The Cornell stars this year are Captain Walder at fullback, Tydeman and Shearer at halfback and Caldwell, the quarterback. The first named has been playing a steady, reliable game all season and is a splendid hand at rallying his men at crucial moments. Tydeman and Shearer are not as experienced as the Pennsylvania halves, but have been showing up well. Caldwell is considered one of the year's star drop kickers. End for end in the line Cornell has somewhat the advantage of Pennsylvania in experience as well as weight, and if the line starts quickly enough to meet the hopes of the coaches the Pennsylvania line may be in danger from the minute play is called.

It is currently reported and generally believed that Cornell has been saving up her trick plays for today's game. In her previous games Cornell has been content with small scores. Even in the game against Chicago, which ended in a 6 to 6 tie, the players were ordered to hold something in reserve for today. It is known that the coaches have evolved a number of trick formations for the forward pass and the onside kick which have worked well in practice. To meet these expected plays the Pennsylvania men have been practicing straight, old fashioned football as well as the use of the forward pass, double pass, onside kick, forward passes from a fake goal from placement formation, runs from punting formation, etc.

GRAPPLERS MEET ON MAT TONIGHT.

Jenkins and Youssiff, the Bulgarian to Swap Holds in New York.

New York, Nov. 26.—Bulgaria, being now free and independent politically, is trying for a place on the sporting map. With that end in view she has sent over here Youssiff Mahmout, her champion wrestler, who is to meet Tom Jenkins, former champion of America, on the mat in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Sports who have seen Youssiff train here say he is pretty good at the grapple game. He is about as big as a mountain and not much quicker, but he knows considerable about up-to-date rules of wrestling.

Jenkins has not appeared much in public since Frank Gotch took the championship title away from him. He has been training the boys at the West Point Military academy and is in fine shape to meet the Bulugarian.

Billek's Mother Stricken.

Cleveland, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Barbara Billek, mother of Herman Billek, condemned to be hung on Dec. 11 at Chicago, received a letter from him bidding farewell. Upon reading the letter Mrs. Billek was stricken with an acute attack of heart trouble. For several hours the physician who was called in believed that the woman would die. She finally, however, rallied slightly. It is believed she cannot live more than a few days.

Girl Sues Parents for Wages.

Akron, O., Nov. 26.—For work she did around the home and farm of her parents, Daniel Hawk and wife of Tallmadge during nine years, Ellen Hawk asks judgment for $1,206 against them in the common pleas court here. She says there is no ill feeling between her and her parents.

GREAT AUTO RACE TO START TODAY.

Contest Begins in Savannah for $5,000 Gold Cup.

NOTED DRIVERS ARE STARTERS.

Nazarro, Haupt, Szisz, Fournier and Others Directing the Most Powerful Machines of Europe and America in Four Hundred Mile Flight.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 26.—"Ten, nine, eight, seven, six, five, four, three, two—go!" yelled the starter into the ear of the first driver to bring his car up to the mark for the start here today of the International race for the Grand Prize of the Automobile Club of America. With a roar from an unmuffled 120 horsepower engine and a three-foot spurt of flame from an exhaust the greatest race in the history of automobiling was on.

It is a tremendous contest that is being waged here today for the $5,000 gold cup. The entrants are the most experienced and daring of the world's auto drivers, assisted by the most skillful mechanicians, driving the most powerful and speediest cars on earth. America, Italy, France and Germany have sent their best men and cars here, and the winners will be hailed as world's champions.

No one doubts that all speed records will be broken today, and it is the general belief that limbs of some of the reckless drivers will share the same fate. Accidents during the preliminary tests of the racing cars have shown that even the splendid course, especially constructed for the race, is not free from the possibility of serious accidents. In justice to the course, however, it should be said that all of the accidents that have occurred so far have been due to faults in the machines rather than in the road.

Race Four Hundred Miles Long.

Today's big race is over a course twenty-five miles in length, sixteen laps, or 400 miles, constituting the total distance of the race. The course is a perfectly level one, banked on the turns. It was built by convict labor. It is surfaced with Augusta gravel, a construction that admits of very high speed. Those who have witnessed races over the Vanderbilt cup course and at Ormond beach declare that the best time on these courses will be eclipsed today. The Ormond beach record is 77 miles an hour. It is believed that at least eighty-five miles an hour will be made by the winner of today's race.

The course for the race is carefully guarded by state militia. That this is the only practical method of guarding an automobile race has been demonstrated. Last spring when there was an automobile race in Savannah the course was guarded perfectly by the same body of men who are guarding it today, and there was not the least trouble or inconvenience in handling the big crowds.

France Will Ignore Castro.

Paris, Nov. 26.—In view of the complete rupture of diplomatic relations between France and Venezuela the news that President Castro of Venezuela is coming to Paris after his operation at Bordeaux has created some surprise here.

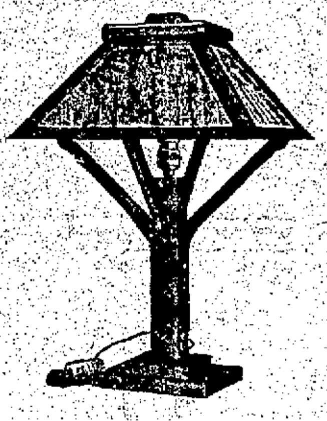
The Greatest Lamp Value You've Ever Seen

A Mission Lamp, exactly like the one pictured, the base upright and frame of shade is of Mission oak, the shade is fitted with green art glass which diffuses a soft restful light through the room, but reflects brilliantly upon book or paper when used as a reading lamp. We've never seen a lamp like this sold at retail for less than $6.00. We offer them completely fitted up for gas or electricity at $3

These lamps come fitted both for gas and electricity. They persent a massive Mission appearance and add much to the richness and home-like appearance of the library or den. Mission furniture, has come to stay. These lamps add the completion touch to the "period room." This is a lamp value that adds another scalp to our belt. It reflects our superior buying power by cutting in two the regular retail price $3



Right After Thanksgiving We Always Have a Rousing Millinery Sale.

It Is a Mid-Season Sale That Is Really the Most Important Millinery Selling of the Whole Season

This is an annual event with us and we consider it the most important Millinery Sale we have: Right when Millinery selling is at its heighth, when choice is not restricted to "left-overs," when nearly a whole season's wear can be had from a hat purchased now. We offer you the most exclusive Millinery in this section of Pennsylvania at prices radically lowered. The reasons for this action are obvious. By making a big clearing at this time we are enabled to keep our entire Millinery force at work right up to the first of the year, thereby offering our public perfect service long after competitive establishments have finished their season. Then, too it enables us to present an almost entirely new collection of hats with which to finish the season. To facilitate buying and quicken the sale we've divided the Millinery entering this sale into two groups:

Millinery Worth from $12.50 to $22.

Shapes are of Satin, Felt and Velvet, handsomely designed and bewitchingly trimmed with ribbons, sashes, plumes, flowers and fancy feathers. You know about the sort of Hats we sell at from $15 to $22. About 25 of them—at $12

Millinery Worth from $8.50 to $12.

You've seen the stunning Hats we've been selling at the above prices. Felt, Velvet and Satin shapes distinctively trimmed. Sashes, ribbons, feathers and flowers form the basis of trimming and you'll find an assortment of Hats—the best you've ever seen at such a little price—$7.00—even at the fag end of a season $7.00

Attractive Passepartouts

Three sizes in various new and attractive subjects. "Some One on the Wire," "Trouble With the Sparker," "The Dog Watch," "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and many others as good. Neatly matted. One of these series is shown in colors, the others in black and white. You'll show good judgment in selecting these now as Christmas gifts. They are new and the choice is unlimited.

10c, 15c and 25c.

The Myopia

The word itself means "near-sighted," but it has been given to the newest and slickest shirt that Cluett—Peabody ever designed. We presume they named it so as the nearer you see it the more firmly it impresses you as something "Kutosh" in the shirt world. A bosom of very fine pleats, the cuffs are bound with a collar, as is the edge of the button-hole band. A new and clever conception. They'll "catch on" quickly. Why not be among the leaders. Wear 'em first $2
